

The LED LightBar displays a varying range of LEDs which represent the distance away from the ideal storage position of the coil. The LED will transition throughout the bar as shown in the diagrams below.

Each LED represents a 0.8-inch position difference between the current position of the coil and the ideal storage position

